Starting Date:  October 14, 2004 (All positions in Coastal Basins); October 1, 2004 (6 positions in Columbia Basins); October 14, 2004 (2 positions in Columbia Basins)
Duration:  3 to 7 months. Some positions may be extended after salmon surveys for steelhead sampling.

We are seeking applicants to fill up to 50 positions within the Oregon Coastal Salmon Inventory Project. Persons in these positions will be responsible for surveying coastal streams for spawning salmon and steelhead. Surveys consist of walking pre-selected stream segments and counting adult salmonids and redds. In addition, surveyors will collect scale samples and examine dead salmon for fin-marks. Surveyors will be stationed at the above locations and should be willing to live in close proximity (35 miles) to the location where they work. Job duties may require an irregular work schedule and will require rigorous physical labor, often under cold and rainy weather conditions. White-water boating skills are desirable for steelhead survey applicants.

More information about the Coastal Salmonid Inventory Project may be obtained at:

Applicants must have a valid driver's license and a good driving record. If not, you must provide an acceptable alternate method of transportation. Successful applicants must present a 5-year "certified court print" driving record upon interview. In Oregon, driving records may be obtained for a nominal fee from any Motor Vehicles Division office.
